Student Life

Not surprisingly, B • L • S students have managed to find rather creative outlets for the stress absorbed during six hours a day of school. Naturally, most of these outlets are confined to weekends because of the tremendous amount of homework all students must complete every night. It would be impossible to discuss the means many have found to alleviate the pain of the daily grind; suffice it to say, in the immortal words of Mr. Kinsey, that they are neither "illegal or immoral."

However, certain B • L • S organizations manage to host quite risqué affairs with the administration's approval: witness the Yearbook's own infamous Halloween Party and Luau. One of the fondest memories of the class of 1990 will undoubtedly be the unofficial Longwood Galleria, where many students congregate at all hours of the day, except, of course, during school.

Occasionally, some people even find free time in which to do something they enjoy; certain members of our class have excelled in the relatively minor pursuits of art and music (relative to such things as tautology, dead languages, and computer). Extra-curricular activities also augment the vast options a student at B • L • S has in the distribution of his time.

Most importantly, students, as well as people of all ages, in fact, spend their time with friends. The greatest redeeming value of our beloved mother is the friends she gives to us; friends we will never forget.

◀ Seniors celebrate their last pep rally at the Massachusetts College of Art Gymnasium. Neither the relocation of the rally, nor the postponement of the Thanksgiving game, dampened the fan's enthusiasm or the team's spirit. The 1990 Wolfpack surpassed the Bulldogs 22 to 6.

Welcome to the first annual, Publius Vergilius Maro Awards

Tonight, on the 27th of October 1989, live from the Grand Ballroom at Boston Latin School, we will host the first annual "Publius Vergilius Maro Awards." There was an overwhelming number of nominations for this evening's gala event. The judges have cast their final ballots and tonight we will reveal the winners... So sit tight and don't flip that channel because tonight we will entertain you with the number one actors, singers, producers, designers, and much much more.

Now, here are your hosts for the show, P.J. and Paula Jane Terranova

South Seas

If you can't afford to go to the islands, bring the islands to you. We've all suffered the curse of Peter's fatal tarantula, Greg's surfing accident, Alice's bad back, and Bobby's near miss with the ancient artifact. We've heard the sounds of Don Ho and seen the exotic flowers, the cascading water falls and of course the beautiful hula girls of Rourke and Tatoos' Fantasy Island. We suffered through the many years with Gilligan, the Skipper too, the millionaire, and his wife, the professor, and Maryann, here on Gilligan's Island. We spent many Saturday afternoons in front of the boob-tube (channel 56) dancing with Annette and Frankie, melting away at the voice of Elvis Presley, and laughing hysterically at the awkward Gidget and Moondoggie. We all praised the Big Kahuna as he glided across the waves. We sailed the Pacific Ocean with McHale and his Navy and are full of envy when we hear "If they could see me now out on a fun ship cruise..."

On February 2, 1990 the Exotic Islands were brought to the exclusive Paradise Cafe for Boston Latin's first ever Luau.

▲ Leave it to Max to break the mold of tourist attire, while Margaret, Christine, and Tracey were only concerned with hitting the beach.

What would you do with $21 Million Dollars?

For over 50 years, the Latin School building on Avenue Louis Pasteur was in dire need of renovations. Unlike the English High School building, across the street, which was vandalized by its own students, the BLS building deteriorated from everyday use. The cosmetic and functional aspects of the building were neglected. Many people opposed the remodeling of the school just as they disapproved of the entire examination school concept. In between, negotiations of merging Latin School and Latin Academy buildings surfaced. Some proposed that Latin School be moved to the Boston Technical High School near Grove Hall.

Finally, the $21,000,000 project was approved and work began. In September of 1988, grades 7, 11, and 12 reported to Avenue Louis Pasteur. Grades 8, 9, 10 reported to the 'Annex' at the Mass. College of Art. This arrangement was set up because only half of the building could be utilized while the other half was being renovated. All seemed well until some students were victimized by illness caused by the benzene fumes in the school. These fumes surfaced because a workman had 'made a mistake.' One day the fumes were so offensive that students were told not to return the following morning. However, the worst of all the problems connected with the construction was the excessive dust in the air. This dust was breathed everyday by the inhabitants of the building. During the 1988-89 school year more students went home sick than in any other year. Petitions circulated and meetings were held with Health and Hospital officials in search of a solution. Active members of the Faculty Senate such as Juanita Ponte, Frank Cahill, and Bob Waldron were very influential in the improvement of the health conditions of the construction site.

Grades 11 and 12 were not required to take physical education as the gym was undergoing cosmetic surgery. Grade 7 shifted over to the Mass. College of Art gym once a week for two periods of gym class.

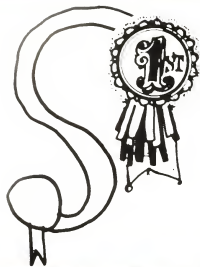

At the end of the 1988-89 school year, the building was already looking better. All of the old lockers had been taken out and replaced with new ones. Each window had its frames replaced and plexiglass was installed. Both the male and female lavatory facilities now had mirrors and toilet paper (luxuries rarely before enjoyed by Latin School students).

In the fall of 1989, the project was near completion. A new language lab was established, new furniture was bought, the cafeteria was painted purple and white, every classroom had its floor refinished, the walls and ceilings painted, and new light fixtures were installed. The library was given a wall to wall face lift and a microfilm computer replaced the old card catalogue system. Unfortunately, the library was not expanded as much as had been proposed, with only a small extension in the back. The new gym is indeed beautiful and the old gym looks marvelous as well. But for $21,000,000 it was a little disappointing that no track or pool facilities were furnished and that the wrestling room which was created was a little too small.

Many music and art students feel a little cheated as they were not given facilities near as elaborate as the athletic facilities, although sound modules were installed in some of the music rooms.

The upperclassmen who experienced the old and suffered through the transition, greatly appreciate the new. Those who enter this edifice in the years to come will equally appreciate the perseverance of the cooperative faculty in getting the job well done.

IN MEMORIAM

James Halloran
1946-1990

Mr. Halloran was a man
Very well known by all,
To him nothing was too big
And nothing too small,

He gave glad tidings to all
That ever passed his way,
He tried to do the best he could
Each and every day,

He was a teacher at Boston Latin
And a fine father too,
But very most of all
He was a friend to me and you,

He was an inspiration to us
With everything he had done,
He was a light to our path
Similar to that of the sun,

All of his pains and sorrows
Have now finally ceased,
Mr. Halloran is eternally happy
For he has attained his peace,

Mr. Halloran will be missed

By every one that he touched,
But especially by the ones
That to him meant so much,

The students of Mr. Halloran
Saw the pain he endured,
But now there is no need to worry
Because Mr. Halloran has been cured,

He is in a place
That eyes can not see,
But the hearts of his friends
Know that he is free,

It is a time to mourn
For we have lost one of our best,
It also is a time to rejoice
Because Mr. Halloran is at rest,

Not with your eyes
But with your minds I want you to see,
Mr. Halloran has gained his reward
He is in Eternity.

LASHONDA BRUNTON
CLASS OF 1991

Dear Mom and Dad,

Through the years, we have grown up with the love and support of our parents. We cannot begin to thank them for everything that they have contributed to our lives. To pay them back would take an eternity.

They have guided us, helped us, taught us and pushed us to be the best that we can be. Now we have graduated, and it is our turn to make our contributions to both our parents and society.

The anticipation of your first tooth; the proud look on their faces when you took your first steps; and the triumph of your first words: chances are, your parents were there to cheer you on. And now upon our graduation from Boston Latin School, we must forgive them if a few tears settle in their eyes. They will be reminiscing about the days when you were just beginning to fill their lives with joy.

Our mothers and fathers have been so much more to us than just parents. They have been our special friends. They have always been there to depend on for a shoulder to cry on; to give an encouraging word of advice, or just a smile or a hug to let us know that we are always loved.

To our parents, for all that they say and do and are, we would like to dedicate this Yearbook in appreciation for all the memories that they have given us and all the hopes and dreams they have instilled in our hearts.

Thanks for everything Mom and Dad. We love you.

People

The students and faculty of this institution personify the Latin School tradition. It is the talent, ambition, hard work, and energy of these fine people that make the B.L.S. the most prestigious secondary school. The individual talent of every student is drawn out by the dedicated teachers. Teachers who did more than instruct a classroom; teachers who volunteered their time, effort, and love for the students. Whether the students were child prodigies, promising athletes, or rising stars, they each added character to Boston Latin. The class of 1990 is an ensemble of such talent and perseverance ready to challenge the world. The unsuspecting world will be amazed at the advancements we will make, each and every one.

Too Good
To Forget

Although these two may appear on the quiet side, mascot, Danikka Giarratani, and Class President, Anne Guiney, whipped up a storm of school spirit throughout the entire football season and the year.

The Key

Behind the Steadfast Countenance of Michael Contompasis

There is this man who parades down the senior corridor with a stately jaunt. He is well dressed in his "five hundred" suit, and is well groomed from head to toe. His mere presence creates a deafening silence, and his stern voice sends a shudder down everyone's spine. His intimidating glare is unbearable, and his laconic speech intimates that he is cold and apathetic. It is not until a student earnestly seeks his help, that this seemingly mechanical man reveals his human heart.

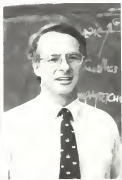

Arriving at 78 Avenue Louis Pasteur every morning before the sun rises, Mr. C (as we call him) often doesn't leave his second home until after dusk. The hours do not pass with Mr. Contompasis admiring the four walls in his office. This valuable time is dedicated to his kids, all 2300 of them. By the time the students attain the honorable title of seniors, Mr. Contompasis has evaluated the progress and potential of each student. He does not make judgements about his students' past or present, he just offers them the means to a promising future.

Behind the steadfast countenance of Michael Contompasis there is a man, a counselor, a parent figure, a financial aid adviser, a headmaster, and a friend; all of whom wish you the best of luck in all your endeavors, and reminds you that he will always be there if needed.

◀ Paul Costello, Head of the Physical Education Department, has also been head coach of the varsity football team for over five years. He was head basketball coach for fifteen years. Coach Costello has been involved in football all his life. He played the positions of fullback and linebacker in high school and then continued on at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, his alma mater. Throughout his entire athletic career, he has always preached, "He who perseveres, WINS!"

▲ J. Robert Evans has more than coached the indoor track team for 12 years, he has taught his athletes the meaning of sportsmanship. Having coached such greats as Janis Reid, Mutonda Durant and the Flemming twins, Evans has shared his expertise with all his runners. Track is not his only forte. Mr. Evans played baseball in high school and for Boston University. This year he bids farewell to a promising athlete Elaine Sylvester, who dominated the Dual-County league 600 yard for 3 consecutive years, and continues to encourage class B winner Emily Parker and the entire Wolftrack.

◀ The Southern atmosphere wasn't challenging enough for Bennie Myers, graduate of Morris College in Sumpter, South Carolina. He came to Boston fourteen years ago to teach history, but in fourteen years he accomplished more than the British did in its glory years. Mr. Myers taught in the classroom, directed on the course, and on the court, he led his girls to the state championships for five consecutive years. Because of his successful record of 87-35 over the past seven years, Myers was nominated as coach of the year four times. Although he has instilled self confidence in each one of his basketball players, he constantly reminds them that, "Whenever you think you're comfortable, remember that someone is always trying to take it away from you."

DOUBLE TAKE

At first glance Mr. Walsh and Mr. O'Malley, respectively, appear to be identical. Can you tell what the difference is? Their wives couldn't.

No, they are not running for mother and daughter of the year, nor are they twins on the Double Bingo commercials. Ms. Morante teaches French and Nancy Bear has fallen victim to a number of students when their teachers were out.

Although both Mr. Lee and Mr. Radden are computer teachers, Mr. Radden attempts to distinguish himself from the nerd image by wearing a sweater to hide the pocket protector.

Do you know the teratogenic and mutagenic potentials of phenytoin caffeine and Arisaema on Nematodes?

Sonny Li compared the effects of the common drug, phenytoin caffeine, and a Chinese medicine, Arisaema, on worms. He has placed in the top two in the state fairs throughout his entire high school career. In his senior year, Sonny was selectively chosen to attend the National Youth Science Camp in West Virginia.

David Akeson took his halogen ions in hydrogen peroxide to place 3rd in the school, 2nd in the city, and advanced to the state science fairs.

Do you know how much oxygen is in the air? Suzanne Mooney did her science project on the percentage of O_2 in the air. Although she only entered the school fair this year, as a junior, Suzi was awarded the honorable mention prize.

Vincent Bono attempted to initiate the process of nuclear fusion by locking hydrogen atoms inside a silver crystal and then bombarding them with hard x-rays and gamma rays. Vinnie, however, did not advance with his project because it was disqualified for being too dangerous.

Boston Latin School Course of Study

LATIN Class IV

LATIN: Five periods a week.

Objectives:

1. Vocabulary including pronunciation (will vary among teachers) and simple (but most likely complex) word derivation.
2. Forms:
 - a. Regular declensions of nouns, with tremendous emphasis on the first.
 - b. Regular declensions of adjectives (us-a-um ski rastrovich).
 - c. Regular conjugations of verbs indicative active and passive and the irregular verb SUM (and the obscure verbs that even the Romans didn't use).
 - d. Translation of simple sentences from Latin to broken, illogical English and from English to distorted Latin.

GREEK Class I

COMPREHENSIVE GREEK: Five periods a week (minus the three studies and one test day).

Objective:

1. The development of a knowledge and appreciation of the Greek language, Greek literature, and Greek teachers alike.
2. Introduction to Greek culture, as seen in its art and architecture and the tremendous influence it has and should have on Western Civilization.

Content:

1. A study of the unique alphabet and basic vocabulary words and aid in the study of derivatives, and an understanding (or rather further confusion) of terms and names encountered in English readings.
2. Greek art and architecture will be studied in relation to the readings in literature. There are supposed to be two visits to Classical Collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts; but due to politics, this opportunity is not guaranteed.

HISTORY Class I

UNITED STATES HISTORY: Five periods a week. (It is optimal to have it fifth period with second lunch) This course will include a brief survey of the constitutional period (unless Mr. McCormack is the teacher, then the majority of the year will be spent on the Constitution itself). Emphasis will be on the very fine cultural, social, and economic trends in American History. It is, however, a required course for all those graduating.

MATHEMATICS Class I

ADVANCED PLACEMENT MATHEMATICS BC (Suicidal course): Seven periods of hell per week.

Aim: To give superior (or rank oriented) students a knowledge and appreciation of differential and integral calculus with heavier emphasis on theory (or in Durant's case, completing entire calculus problems in your head)

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

SENIOR CONCERT BAND: Two periods a week (in between all the other activities)

The Senior Concert Band provides experienced instrumentalists with the opportunity to rehearse, study and perform music from the standard band literature. The Senior Concert Band plays one very long concert in May and plays at a bunch of miscellaneous assemblies throughout the year.

We the most prestigious graduating class of the Boston Latin School, being of sound mind and body, hereby bequeath in the year one thousand nine hundred and ninety to our beloved and most respected faculty the following sentiments and gifts: To the Greek patron saint, Mrs. Karydas, we grant you a place on Mt. Olympus among the other Greek gods. To the teacher who was born in a three-piece-suit, Mr. Salterio, we leave jeans, a T-shirt, and a leather jacket. We give an appointment at Fine Light to Ms. Pagos, because she is young at heart. To the forgettable Mr. Lee, we leave a memory and a degree in computer science. We leave a clean desk to Mrs. Kussell. For those in need of a new career, we leave Mr. Carroll a job; Mr. Counselor position at Tech. (maybe he can get them into college); Mr. Leary, the Peoples Republic of Massachusetts, a spot on the new Muppets Movie; Mr. Kinsey, hair grease; Mr. Akeson, we publish seasonal passes. In order to update their appearances, we leave Mr. Casey, a tie with taste; and to the seemingly omniscient, Mr. Page, a stack/heap collision and hash belts. To Mr. LaCroix, we leave a comprehensible accent. To the francophiles, Ms. Valentin and Ms. Conteh, we leave a smokeless ashtray; Mr. Pratt, a class that reaches the big TOE, and office with a smile (that is). In order to raise the standards of this fine table" to Mr. Ordway, a grade book; Dr. Scheufele, a high school diploma; Mr. Beninati, a teacher's room all to himself. We leave a "stack/heap collision and hash institution, we give Mr. Beninati, a history final that counts, Mr. McCabe, no copies of the Ancient History final; Mr. Wellings, test #125; and Mr. McCormack, a real British accent; Mr. Marder, for those teachers eternally seeking for unusual gifts, we give Mr. Roche, a real British accent; Mr. Wellings, test #125; and Mr. McCormack, a real British accent; Mr. Marder, for those teachers eternally seeking for unusual gifts, we give Mr. McCarthy, a weekend in a Zen Buddhist camp; and Dr. Hayes, Moby Dick. To the Vivarin for his class. For those teachers eternally seeking for unusual gifts, we give Mr. Bronski, a weekend in a Zen Buddhist camp; and Dr. Hayes, Moby Dick. To the Gyn, we leave windows that can be opened with one hand. To Mrs. Kelley-LaCambria, we leave a huge church bell to begin the day and easy spirit walking sneakers.

Because we are the most generous class and strive in every way to fulfill the expectations of the Boston Latin Faculty, we leave to the illustrious headmaster, Michael Contompasis, a specialty shop in Carmel, California, and a wife. We hope that over the past four or six years, we have served the Latin School to our full potential; and we leave the above mentioned gifts as a token of our appreciation and in some cases lack of appreciation for all that has been done for us. Finally, last but not least, we leave the entire B.L.S. staff a sense of humor so that they may laugh at this will.

those teachers who were helpful. There are professional educators who dedicate portions of their lives to the younger generations. They once taught math, Latin, or computer; but have since left Latin's classrooms and entered new levels of their careers. These men have advanced to a different plateau, establishing a role model for the Latin students to climb to the summit of life's expectations.

The Teachers are just like wine, As they get older, they get better.

The inexperienced players on the students' basketball teams, could not match wits with the mature, professional-like teachers' squad. The approximate thirty point spread between the two combatants reflected the years and years (and years) of preparation that the faculty had as an advantage over the newborn victims. So what if Mr. Myers recruited four outside players. They didn't assist the teachers' team (they were the team). Regardless of who played, the faculty held an ace in its hand. Coach Costello was the official referee; and with his reputation and position on the staff at stake, he was forced to make bad calls against the younger players. So yes, one could say that as the teachers got older they got better. And anyone with half a brain would, because hey everyone wants an 'A.'

The existing gym served its purpose. It put a roof over our heads when it rained, except for the leaks. It protected us from the cold weather, except for the drafts. Its windows shed some light through the cracks. It had a sturdy hardwood floor with buckles. It also had sufficient lighting fixtures, but only half of them worked. In any case, we had what we called a gym. Anyone from the outside, however, would have called it a dungeon, and in most cases they did.

It was built over fifty years ago with good intentions, but over the course of many years of wear and tear, the building "went bad." In the reconstruction contract the existing gym received a facelift, the locker rooms were gutted out and relocated, and a second gymnasium was erected. It is an expensive athletic facility, which will now allow tomorrow's Latin students to compete on the same level with the suburban competition.

▲ The teachers pulled out all the stops as they recruited this secret weapon.

▲ Mrs. McCarthy and Novella struggle for possession of the ball. Neither one of them was able to get a good grip on it until after they were out of bounds.

◀ The bench, Peach Fuzz Fernandez, Sheehan of the striped socks, and "Baby face" Page waited patiently before they made an attack upon the defenseless students.

▲ Charles Holder surpasses Armando "Air" LoConte by leaps and bounds.

► Richard Izzo did more than teach Biology, Earth Science, and Chemistry; he took over the Drama Club, when no one else wanted the job. He was also the faculty advisor for the Ski Club, and the Hawaiian Cultural Society. Mr. Izzo took time out of his busy schedule to hold a ten week preparation course for those students taking the Biology Achievement test.

▲ Paul Costello was the Athletic Department head, and an inspiration to the scholar-athletes at Boston Latin. He is the football coach and an avid fan of Latin's other teams.

► Malcolm Flynn is not your everyday run of the mill teacher, but who at Latin School is? Mr. Flynn is the faculty advisor to the Student Council, as well as the "Argo."

▼ Ms. Inez Middleton would win the Latin Spirit award among the teachers if there was ever such a contest. She is both the manager and coach of the cheerleading squad. She ran the Universal Peer Discussion Group and the Classics Club, which performed "Julius Caesar."

◀ Along with being head of the history department at Latin School, Peggy Kemp did many other beneficial things for our students. She brought many scholarship, internship, and fellowship opportunities to the attention of the student body to give every student a better chance to go on to college.

▼ Gregory Turpin, having the eternal support of his kids, taught us more than the civics text, he taught us how to sell ourselves to the working world and how not to take "NO" for an answer.

MORE THAN 4

▲ Marie Daly was the senior hallway floor-master. She was also an English and American Government teacher who moonlighted as an attorney. Her knowledge of politics and business etiquette made her a common source for advice and laughter among the students.

◀ No, Mr. Keitt and Mr. Bronski did not teach the can-can, but they did give instructions in how to have fun when all of our math and English homework was done.

Talk of the Town

The J.F.K. Corps is more than a group of tour guides for the memorial John F. Kennedy Library. These young adults perform civil services throughout the entire year. For over two years, these girls have volunteered their time to Boston's various "soup kitchens," worked with handicapped children in the Very Special Art Fest, and their 1989-90 project is to produce a video documentary on the homeless in Boston. They appeared on the local television program "Rap Around" to discuss homelessness and its victims.

High kicking, musically talented, blue eyed Italian, Elena Ialuna came to us from across the Atlantic. Utilizing her physical strength and discipline, she placed fourth at the National Karate Open Tournament. Elena doesn't focus all of her attention on Karate, however, her quiet moments are spent by the side of a piano. As for the blue eyes, well, those came with the package. Her hard work and determination will lead her One Step Beyond her dreams.

Adam Linn is a vibrant member of the Boston Latin student body. Early on in his BLS career, Adam was one of very few students selected to attend the Young Writers Conference. Adam was selectively chosen for the John Ward Fellowship where he worked in the office of Secretary of State Connally over the summer of '89. In addition to this, Adam is a member of the National Honor Society, and his SAT scores were among the highest in the class. As if this record is not impressive enough, Adam has a slight disadvantage; he is blind and has been that way since grade school. He has not and will not let anything get in his way of excellence and achievement.

Over the past few years, Alicia was chosen as one of the Boston Herald's Athlete of the week and Scholastic All-Star. With best times of 1.09 in the 100 yard and 2.27 in the 200 yard breaststroke, Alicia was selected as a Junior National Qualifier and placed second in the entire state. May she ride high on the wave of success!

Music Immortal

The tunes of D.J. Syvalia Hyman will rise above the roofs of the Boston Latin cafeteria and Boston University to greater heights. With heart and soul, Syvalia has entertained hundreds and thousands of party-goers with his mixing and music. Besides providing us with unlimited

Class Act

This young man needs no introduction or color to make him look good. His music speaks for itself. His talent in playing the viola has made him a celebrity at Latin School, as a member of the String Ensemble, and around the world. He has performed in Philadelphia, at Carnegie Hall in New York, Japan, and in Russia. Along with his musical attributes, John is also an officer of the National Honor Society, a member of the Drama Club, and a Public Declamer.

Next year, John will be attending Curtis, the most illustrious music institution in the nation. John is a class act all around.

Academics

For over three hundred and fifty years Boston Latin's exaltation of drudgery has molded this country's young men — and now young women — into its finest scholars, leaders and citizens. Like a young psychopathic child squishing Wonder Bread into hard balls our Alma Mater has formed the raw material of youth into polished, refined erudition. Now the class of 1990 — the latest product of B • L • S — rolls like that ball of Wonder Bread to college to put the finishing touches on our education, and we can look back fondly on those six nightmarish years of thankless toil.

Much has changed since the classes of 1890 and 1940 received the best and oldest education in the country, but the guiding principles of Latin School then still govern our own rigorous curriculum. We can look back on our education with the same mixture of pride, self-respect, self-righteousness, and utter disbelief that B • L • S graduates had fifty and one hundred years ago.

Too Good
To Forget

◀ Although Anne-Maria may not be destined to become a laureate, her experience of laureate calculus might reflect reinforcement, but in a way, it also shows some definite potential. Nobel laureate winner perhaps not, but the laureate Nobel laureate offers her a new laureate way.

Joseph Lawrence Powers Headmaster

TO THE SENIORS:

During your years as students in this school, you have accumulated a certain number of mementos of the years you have spent here: copies of the Register, the annual Catalogue, programs of Declamations and other exercises, perhaps Appropriation Cards, even prize books or medals. Cherish these things as memorabilia. They will take on greater and greater value as the years pass; in twenty-five, in fifty years, they will be priceless to you.

This volume will be, in many ways, the outstanding memorial of your life at Boston Latin School. In some future day, perhaps in some far distant place, you will be able to open it and look into the faces of the boys who used to work with you and play with you and, maybe, fight with you in the old care-free days of school. You will take comfort from it.

But don't let your associations with your classmates be enshrined within this volume or written only on the pages of memory. So long as you can meet with your class in annual reunions. See that your class becomes an active unit in the alumni body, the Boston Latin Association. It has been said that the alumni of this school constitute a roster of American history. That is very true. You are about to join a very distinguished company. Let your life declare you worthy of it.

BOSTON LATIN SCHOOL.

► The Public Declamation ceremonies of 1890 included excerpts concerning American government and appearances from Boston Latin's very own Orchestra.

◄ Not only were superior grades and attendance criteria for approbation; punctuality, perfect recitation, and a honorable conduct grade were required.

William Anthony Gault introduced the "first permanent" school library and the "first permanent" school library in Latin School's history.

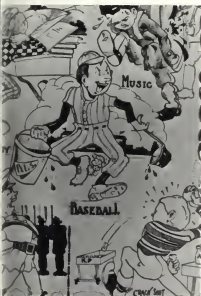

Liber Acturum MCMXL

Class Officers

◀ Fifty years ago, Latin's only class officers were the President, the Vice President, the Treasurer, and three chairman.

► In the 1940 Liber Acturum, each student listed the college he would be attending in the fall as well as the middle school which he came from.

◀ The class of 1940 wasn't just another class of stuffy old men. These students were young humorous gentlemen, who sometimes displayed their mischievous personalities through art.

Class Will

That we, the class of 1940 of the Boston Latin School, in the County of Suffolk, the home of beans and precocious children, State of Massachusetts, in the United States of America, being of sound mind and body, and having proved ourselves according to prescribed law not to be lunatics or infants, or both, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be our last will and Testament.

To Mr. Carroll: a comfortably padded lounging chair and a staff of trained assistants to aid him in his strenuous labor.

To Mr. Sheck: the lost molecule, if and when we find it.

To the English Department: the knowledge that we are but high school seniors and not college seniors, although some of us, by a perverse twist of fate, may reach that distant goal.

To Class II: The status of Seniors, which we have raised to glorious and scintillating heights, and also an ingenious method of going to every football game on one ticket.

To Class V and VI: Nothing, for the simple reason that we can't see them from our lofty pedestals.

This is not the cover of the 1990 Register, it is the 1890 Latin School Register. This literary publication was distributed once a month. The press of James L. Corr and Company, Boston, printed the Register at the subscriber cost of fifty cents for those delivered to the school, sixty cents for those mailed home, and seven cents for single copies.

The following are some excerpts from "Boys of B.L.S.," an article in the 1890 Register.

The majority of the boys are blessed with good character and high morals. They would not lower themselves to cheating, falsehood, and other petty vices. Not the spirit of truth is omnipresent in the school.

There is one thing we all should remember: we are picked from the whole city of Boston, and we are pupils in the Boston Latin School, in all respects the first Public School in the world.

"Progress in Locomotion"

I suppose before many years we shall find ourselves flying through the air.

Who ever in my younger days would have dreamed that a time would come when we could travel implied by that mysterious agent, electricity!

The satisfactory work guaranteed by G. Walden Smith photographer is a rarity, (100 years to be exact) from that of Cambridge Studios.

— Most people went to U. Holzer Book Binder to have books bound in leather to display in their own personal library.

— Declamation drill was offered to any student at a price. Only ten dollars for five hours of lessons.

— "Our Crawford Shoe" stores were the most popular in Boston. Their hand sewn shoes sold for the remarkable low price of four dollars.

— For that prize you never earned, I. Harriot could fill your order of medals, badges, emblems, or pins.

— While GAP, Gerbault, and Gucci were in, George W. Cushman defined the fashion. His tall and winner line were the best in gentlemen's attire.

— National Supply Company was one of the first to offer ready made clothing and would sell the apparel on liberal terms of credit, not cash.

— Typewriters were the largest sellers to college bound students, not personal computers.

— Spitz Bros. and Mark sold "comfortable, tasteful, and cheap" sack suit for a mere fifteen dollars.

Efforts that had not gone Unnoticed

College essays were some of the most dreaded things that we seniors had to face. The seemingly unreasonable deadlines pushed us to our limit and in some cases over the limit. Luckily we had teachers like Dr. Hayes, Mr. Regan, and Ms. Colvario, who volunteered their time and effort to assist us in writing our college essays. They gave us advice as to which topics and themes we should choose. They corrected grammar errors and forced us to meet our deadlines. Without the help of these and other such teachers, most of the senior class would have been at a loss.

Thank You,
Class of 1990

Boston University is welcoming Sophia Mitchell and a great number of Latin graduates to Commonwealth Avenue. In September 1990, Sophia will be a member of BU's School of Arts and Sciences.

Kyle Wells is traveling south for the winter. After sorting through the millions of colleges who wanted him, Kyle chose Florida A&M. Although he is not certain of his major, Kyle will definitely have some major fun in the sun.

Hard work has paid off for Patti-Lee Batsinelas. She is heading north to Toronto and Ryerson University.

After retiring years ago, Mr. Miller continues to work with the Latin students through the guidance department. He faithfully comes to school every day and spends endless hours on the phone and filling out the never ending forms for colleges.

*Paul Miller, one of Boston's ACCESS advisors, assisted a great number of students with their college financial needs. He encourages each and every student to contact the agency for advice or aid.

Once again B.L.S. students have given their time and effort to help sixties become familiar with the ways and customs of our wonderful school through the Buddy System. More often than not, many of the students who participated in the Buddy System were also members of the Key Club. These students gave more than just time, they also gave

Pre-Med Society

To all the Doogie Howsers of the world,

Welcome to the Pre-Med Society! No past experience necessary. Perfect SAT scores are not a prerequisite for joining, all we ask is that you have an interest in medicine. With the Pre-Med Society, the potential doctors and physicians go on various field trips and attend current lectures. Most agree that it is a great learning experience, but it is also a lot of fun. A little word of advice to those future doctors, good luck and get some good insurance.

MARINE BIOLOGY

Rumor has it that the 1990 Marine Biological Society has discovered a new life form under the sea. It is not your conventional mermaid, Abyss, or even Don Knotts. Under the direction of Mr. Estabrooks, these marine enthusiasts ventured onto many explorations and museum visits. As a result of extensive research, these students discovered something unknown within each of them. They uncovered a sense of curiosity which they all wanted to quench. These new "creatures" will now go on to advance their education, and fulfill their thirst for knowledge about the mysterious ocean.

MASS PEP

Mass Pep, (no it's not a cheering squad) stands for Massachusetts Prep Engineering Program. The program at BLS encourages visits to construction sites, Raytheon, Gillette, and Polaroid. The students also have the opportunity to visit MIT. In addition to field trips, Mass Pep has set up a tutoring program for math and science. A few juniors and seniors were fortunate enough to receive summer internships through the program. Mass Pep will definitely pep you up!

Kansas City or Bust

The following is an excerpt from an article by Diane Manuel, published in The Boston Sunday Globe on May 20, 1990.

Akeson and four classmates from Boston Latin School not only mastered the logistics of Marketplace Center but also came up winners in the national high-school chess championship they'd traveled 1,400 miles to enter. When they returned home last month, they carried with them a polished 2½-foot trophy for first-place team in their division.

The best part of the trip, they all agree, were getting out of classes for four days, energizing on pizza between matches and celebrating their final win with a steak dinner.

"Chess is really what you make it," says team captain Akeson. "It's a wicked mind battle if you like thinking hard, but it's also a lot of fun. Especially when you think up something that's really going to crush your opponent." "It's more of a personal achievement thing. I was relieved when the matches were over, and gratified when I won, but it's the competing that makes it fun," says Robert Kwong. Before the national championships, Paul says, he and Donald practiced a lot together at home.

The prize-winning team could be borrowing a page from the success stories of such illustrious Boston Latin graduates as Cotton Mather, Thomas Bulfinch, John Hancock and John Adams.

"Their championship win is a recognition that these kids have worked pretty hard," says Boston Latin headmaster Michael Contompassis. "We find in many cases that the busier youngsters are, the more successful they are because they have to plan their time more effectively."

LAMPOON

To the Class of 1990:

The 1989-1990 school year has come to a close. As you all prepare to leave Boston Latin School, never again to return as a student, to attend college and embark on a life long career, keep in mind that this is not a beginning, but an end. It is the end of having a parent wake you up in the morning and telling you that you have to go to class. It is the end of having a test every Friday that you wish you could have had on Monday so you can study on the weekend even though you wouldn't anyway. And most important of all, it's the end of having to deal with turbo-pack powered, mach-5 sixties. Have successful lives, and never look back.

The 1990 Awards Ceremony initiated Commencement weekend, the ultimate of ceremonial exercises. Although the Awards Night was the beginning of the long awaited graduation, it was also a continuum of the traditional and, in the recent school year's case, innovative assemblies throughout the year. The class of 1990 either sponsored or were beneficiaries of the various school gatherings. Mayor Flynn and Governor Dukakis were present at the gymnasium opening ceremony. Classmates were inducted into the prestigious National Honor Society. Those who were courageous and audible stood before the school and declaimed for prizes. The graduating class was inducted into the Alumni Association and was informally advised to seek the alumni's resources for advice and opportunities. It was because of the Boston Latin School's nation wide alumni million dollars in financial aid from their respective colleges, there was still a need to award monies to each student. After a very successful year of fund raising, the alumni association was able to hand out over one hundred fifty thousand dollars in scholarships. Through senior advisors, John Page, Guy Beninati, and their committees, the alumni distributed the funds to those students deserving the awards. In return for the alumni's generosity, the association only wishes for the students' academic success and an increase in active alumni members.

Sports

The next Twenty-five page are action packed, exciting, and full of suspense. They illustrate the glory of winning and the agony of defeat.

The professional-like athletes of Boston Latin School volunteer their time and dedicate themselves to continue the tradition of excellence across the state and country.

These scholar-athletes, who rise before the sun and who don't reach home until dusk, demonstrate determination both on the field and in the classroom. Their long days begin with classroom studies, followed by a rigorous physical work-out, and end with endless hours of homework.

We commend these fine students, as they are Latin's best ambassadors to surrounding schools.

Great thanks is extended to all those athletes who have inspired us to reach our own goals.

The long awaited gym could not have possibly been given to a more deserving group than the class of 1990!

VICTORY!!

Too Good
To Forget

◀ The young and talented Domenic Giammarco is Boston Latin School in a nutshell. Dom is a man of many talents. As a member of the football team, he is a great tackle. As a musician, he is a superior trumpet player. In the competitive classroom, he is among the best. A man with such natural ability can influence the world.

NOT necessarily SPORTS

For the loyal fans of the BLS Wolfpack, this Thanksgiving was more than a little disappointing. After the rowdy Pep Rally at the Mass. College of Art gym on Wednesday, November 23, the Latinites were all set to cheer on the Purple and White at BU's Nickerson Field.

Not so fast ... Who would've thought that Jack Frost would come so early and send five inches of snow down to Boston, enough to postpone the annual Grid-Iron classic. Game or no game, a handful of die-hards performed the yearly ritual of going down to Rowe's Wharf for the Victory Cruise, unfortunately, only a handful. To make matters worse, Coach Costello had hired an extra large ship, as the '88 cruise had been such a sell-out. It must have been too icy out for the D.J., because he never showed up. A few party animals tried in vain to dance to the sounds of their voices. Most everyone else kept themselves occupied playing truth or dare. How old are we, guys? Let's see, did I forget anything ... No D.J., No people, Too big of a boat, bad weather ... oh, a few fans decided to side with Mother-Nature, they were a little "under the weather" too. Well, anyway, all's well that ends well. On Saturday, November 25 (better late than never), the Wolfpack overcame the Bulldogs in their 103rd annual school boy classic by winning 22-6. They probably could not have done it without the lovely cheerleaders or the enthusiastic Pep-Squad which just celebrated its first season. They have a funky beat that keeps all the crowd jammin'. No matter what, the spirit of Latin will live in our hearts forever.

► Two of the Pep Squad Captains, Ashaki and Debbie have got some big old mouths as they pump up the crowd. This was the Pep Squad's first season in existence, and a successful one at that.

▼ The BLS Cheerleading Tri-Captains Milele Bourne, Lori Breen, and Melissa Carr have really "Got the Spirit" as they get the crowd going at the Latin v. English game, which due to a snow storm was played on the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

► The Boston Latin Cheerleaders are "Jumping at the Woodside" at the Grid-Iron Club sponsored Spaghetti Supper in the newly renovated BLS Cafe.

▲ Captain Matt Small is too hot to handle as he calms the admiring crowd at the Pep Rally on the eve of the 103rd Latin v. English football game.

◀ Nicole Desharnais is all smiles as she leads the '90 Seniors to their second Powder Puff win.

Under the direction of Kara Zaleskas and Ingrid Sheldon, the Boston Latin football band kept the "Victory Beat" going all season long. For the Thanksgiving Game Pep Rally, which was held in the Mass. College of Art Gym, many BLS alumni, who are also veterans of the band took their old places and joined in . . .

"On the fields of many colors Latin banners fly,
Cheer for cheer like rolling thunder echoes thru the sky
See the Latin team advancing gaining more and more We'll fight, fight, fight, with all our might,
For old Latin evermore!!!!"

▼ Rafael McLaughlin exerted all of his energy and determination onto the unsuspecting defense . . .

► Eddie Montes avoided a tackle like the plague. Eddie's dazzling footwork was a key factor in Latin's running game.

L back to life!

The 1989 Wolfpack under the leadership of captain Matthew Small was able to return after last year's dismal season. Latin's Purple Pride achieved a respectable final record of 5-4-1.

The 1989 schedule was one of the Wolfpack's most exciting yet. Never has a Latin School squad played three undefeated teams during the course of one season. The team, however, kept its pride and finished the season with three straight victories.

One of the two most memorable games was the game against Newton South. With seconds left in the game and the Pack threatening to score, the N.S. Lions made a goal line stand to preserve a tie. This was a game which the Pack let get away.

The second most memorable game of the season was the 103rd annual Latin vs. English game. English scored first on the second play from scrimmage, but that would be the only scene for the rest of the day. Latin would triumph with a valiant fourth quarter effort. The Wolfpack scored 22 points and kept the winning streak alive.

If there were a M.V.P. for the 1989 season, the award would go to senior fullback/cornerback Desmond Lovell. After suffering a career threatening leg injury during the 1988 Thanksgiving game, Dez not only played the entire 1989 season but was elected to the Dual County League All Star Team. That kind of team effort is the true meaning behind "Purple Pride."

The One and only

Hi everybody! Here we are, the girls' soccer team in action. We look good, don't we? I was asked to put in our record for the season ... O.K., it was 0-16. There. Everyone else can have a little laugh for themselves. It doesn't matter to us, we all tried hard and made a big improvement.

There are several girls I'd like to call our "outstanding players." They gave 100% whenever they played and had great attitudes. Let's begin with our Dual County League All Stars, Tricia Lohan, Nicole Desharnais, and Michelle McCleary. This was the third and last year for two of our captains, Tricia and Nicole. Tricia had an excellent year as goalie and Nicole was our "Leader of defense." Our other All-Star freshman, Michelle, finished her second year as goalie (pretty impressive to be picked for the All-Stars as a freshman, wouldn't you say?). The other outstanding players were Jessica Pepp, Rosemary Powell, and Michelle O'Brien. Jessica is a freshman completing her third season and making great improvements as halfback. Rosemary

(A.K.A. "The Wall") is in her second year of defending us. She is a sophomore. Michelle O'Brien, a junior, got a few bruises this season as a second year halfback, only because she gave it her all. I think everyone did. I'm counting on all of you to break our "streak" next year.

Speaking for all of the seniors, good luck guys and (oh, this is so corny) thanks for the memories!

Do you remember ... Cara's goal (the one and only!) ... putting up the goal posts ... "Michelle O'Brien, are you O.K.?" ... The Saturday game in Billerica (How's that yellow cara Mariana? ... Mr. Let's Get Craxy Fitzgibbon ... our faithful fans ... running at practice ... changing shirts ... Tricia "Loops" Lohan ... Aris the Dancing Machine ... Nicole, how's that handball? ... The game in Weston (so close guys!) ... Kerri the Speed Demon at practice ... And, Waa-Woo-Woo-Woo-Woo-Wolfpack! (Did we ever really say the right number of Woos?)

Special thanks to Coach Aris, Mr. McCormack, and all you Guys.

eleven

There are few who will forget the Banner year that the Boy's Soccer team had in 1989. The team captured the hearts of youngsters all over the world with their 3-0 victory over Weston High School on Tuesday, October 24th. This victory was the first by the "Latin Eleven" since they entered the Dual County League in 1982. This is the victory that will no doubt echo in the hallowed halls of B.L.S. throughout history.

This fine squad was led by senior Co-captains, Greg Fallon and Derek Shine. Shine, a three time Dual County League All-Star, was fortunate enough to have netted all three goals on the day Weston fans will forever call Black Tuesday. Mr. Fallon on the other hand, was a six year starter defensive standout, and always came to play. Helping him on defense was Bill Fisher, probably the most underrated player on the squad; but definitely the most dependable and consistent.

A host of other players come to mind when discussing winning spirit (God knows we needed it). Minh Dang, David "girly" Manilov, Shawn Wilson, and Jorge Sun, were each a major factor in creating the positive attitude that only "fine Scholars" were able to establish. Also 'should be' alumnus, Ailbe Glynn, demonstrated his versatility, when he was called upon to face one of the League's toughest opponents, Bedford, as Goal-tender.

All of the seniors would like to thank coach Rick Sewall for his patience and perseverance. We are glad that we could present him with not one, but two victories as a parting gift.

... Remember "the coin of Pummelation" ...

Story by Derek Shine

► Maile Mai, one of the most athletic and enthusiastic personalities to ever set foot on a court, was the spiritual leader of the girl's Wolfpack. A strong defensive player, Judy Chan, was also known for her surprise sneak attacks against the other team.

▲ Pretty but powerful Olympia Ming was effective in the front line and unbelievable on defense.

▲ Captain, Lisa Volpago, was the team's outstanding hitter until her ankle injury, during this game against North Quins.

Against All Odds

Imagine playing tennis in dry sand, football on slippery ice, golf on a muddy course, or practicing volleyball in the Massachusetts College of Art gymnasium. Well, maybe it wasn't that extreme. The girl's volleyball team did have a floor, four walls and a ceiling. So there wasn't a court, official net, or sufficient lighting, there have been worse hardships. These seemingly devastating circumstances were overcome, however, by the team's undying spirit.

During the summer months, the starting six met at the Josiah Quincy School for some rigorous training. Their preseason games reflected their effort. By defeating the other teams, the ladies' Wolfpack began the season in contention with the inevitable Division Champions. The future looked promising, yet as any athlete knows, a season isn't complete without a few injuries. It was a series of injuries which weakened the team physically, yet didn't influence their mental preparation or perseverance. After a close match with North Quincy, the girls were determined to give it their all in the second set. As fate would have it, captain, Lisa Silipigno, met with a season-ending injury. It was not only an unfortunate finale to her high school volleyball career, it was the end of a relationship which could only be experienced on the court.

It was Mable Mui's tremendous athletic ability and voice which carried the team to new heights, which no undefeated record could ever do. Josilyne, Anna, Michelle, Jean, Lisa, Judy, Olympia, Mable, and Lisa will go down in the history books as the first rated team not to have won their games numerically but spiritually.

Good luck guys, I know you'll do well!

Lisa Silipigno

▲ The intense look in Josilyne Pacifico's eye offset her humorous personality. Jose had the habit of joking around one minute, and ready to kill the next. Her violent side was always pointed at the opposition, however.

The BLS Cross-country team has continued to improve over the years and this season was no exception. Under the fine coaching of Mr. Michael Megher, the team finished with a record of 4-3.

For the second season in a row, the 'BIG GUN' on the team was Elaine Sylvester. After a fantastic season, she finished fourth in the All-League Meet, and along with Shena Stokes, was selected as a Dual County League All Star.

Shena is also praised for her performance this season. She suffered a leg injury in the spring and had to train extra hard over the summer to get back into shape.

Sophomores Britt Kelly and Kari Nanstead both showed significant improvements this season. Both of the girls did well at the All-League Meet and the future looks very bright for them.

Another strong member of the team was junior Emily Parker. She exemplified a consistent effort throughout the entire season and she had a very strong finish.

Outgoing seniors Ann Leahy, Betsy Monge, and Kareema Scott along with captain Elaine will be missed for the hard work and support which they gave to the team.

Going Bananas

The Boston Latin Girls' Swim Team ended the 1989 season with a 4-4 record. We practiced hard for two hours each day. Our hard work was rewarded when we placed fourth at the League Championships. The combined efforts of our two coaches, Mr. Conley and Ms. Byrd, and the fifty girls who made up the team led us to one of our most successful seasons.

The team is full of young talent, but will be sad to lose nine seniors: Suzi Mooney, Amy Kiley, Alicia Keenan, Michelle Joyce, Polly O'Brien, Heather McKeigue, Anne Guiney, Lynn Burke, and Polly MacGregor.

Polly O., our long distance free styler was a supportive friend to everyone. She worked hard at practice and did all she could for the team. Heather was one of our top swimmers and divers. Even though she was not able to actively participate this year, she was still a most important member of the team. She worked hard for everyone and was always there for the team. Polly Mac and Lynn got everyone pumped before every meet with their crazy cheers and loud shouts. Their senses of humor made everyone laugh. Anne was filled with a constant energy. She was a model of team spirit. She cheered on every swimmer at every meet. The four captains: Suzi, Amy, Alicia, and Michelle were named to the Dual County League All Star Team this year. Alicia has been the team's MVP each of her five seasons. She placed third in the breast stroke and sixth in the free style at the state meet. Michelle, Amy, and Suzi were the only members of the team who were on the team throughout their entire six year career at Latin School. This is just one example of their dedication. They are strong swimmers on their own count and team players in every sense of the word. The four captains made up the medley relay team that went undefeated in the dual meets.

These seniors will be greatly missed, but the team looks forward to its bright future.

Story by Amy Kiley

▼ Seniors, Ann, Polly, Paulina, Alicia, Sue, Amy, Michelle, Lynn, and Heather, completed another successful year.

▼ Following in the footsteps of Alicia Keenan, Amy Kiley glides through the water with the breast stroke.

▲ Ann Guiney swam one of the more difficult runs, the 100 yard butterfly. Polly MacGregor worked well with her teammates in the free-style relay and as an individual in the 100 yard butterfly. Heather McKeigue was the greatest supporter for this team, as you can see by her smile. The 100 yard freestyle and 100 yard relay were Lynn's thing.

▲ Michelle Joyce, a member of the medley relay, was an expert free style swimmer. Amy Kiley is a very versatile swimmer; she competed against the best in the individual medley. Sue Mooney must have had eyes in the back of her head; She led the pace in the 100 yard backstroke.

No Matter How You Slice It,

LATIN RULES

Suffering from the loss of our four graduating seniors, including two of the best golfers ever to play for Latin, the Golf Team had few expectations for this year. With new depth from the underclassmen Mike Mason, Jeff Keenan, Mike Scaccia, and Jennifer Murray (Latin's first ever female golfer), the team was transformed into a competitive force in the Dual County League. The team earned a spot in the State Team Qualifier. This was a first in the school's history. We ended with a six-six record, which included the team's first victory over Concord-Carlisle and a crushing defeat over bitter archrival Bedford, while competing with darkness, chilling winds, and freezing rain. The team performed with the consistent efforts of the seniors Dave Akeson, Jae Cho, and the DCL All-Stars, Stace Chronopoulos and Dennis Walsh.

The 1989-1990 Wolfpack squad posted a commendable 9-11 record, barely missing a chance at qualifying for the State Tournament. Senior Captain Jim Hunt provided outstanding on and off the court leadership. Second on the team in scoring, Jim was selected to the Dual County League All-Star Team along with junior Tom Nguyen. Seniors Matt Walsh, Chris Wertz, and Kevin Fitzgerald supplied the Wolfpack with much needed rebounding and defense.

Season highlights include the Wolfpack's championship in the Canton Holiday Tournament, breaking the century mark in defeating Weston (103-58), a near upset of talent-laden rival Boston

English, and the selection of Matt Walsh and Chris Wertz to the academic All-State Team. This marks the sixth consecutive year that a member(s) of the Boys' Team has received such an honor.

That's the way we spell success

The 1989-1990 basketball season marked the beginning of the post-Averrill Roberts era for the Boston Latin Girls' Basketball team. After the departure of the Boston Globe All-Scholastic Player-of-the-year, everyone expected the girls to have their first losing season in six years — but they were wrong. Led by seniors Paulette Milne (Captain, D.C.L. All-Star), Nora "Doobie" Baston (D.C.L. All-Star), Nicole Desharnais (Captain, two time D.C.L. All-Star), and Debbie Dubique (Captain), the team had a winning season, finishing with an impressive 15-4 record. The girls earned a "bye" in the first round of the state tournament and cruised by Everett in the second round to advance to the semi-finals against Bishop-Fenwick. Unfortunately, Fenwick was too tough for the Lady Wolfpack.

The team played a great game to finish off a great season, but couldn't hang on in the fourth quarter.

The winning tradition should continue next year as the Wolfpack will return: juniors — Jenny Henderson and Alyssa Baxter, a terrific duo. Sophomores — Mona Sharaf, Mariana Todesco (D.C.L. All-Star), Maura Kelly and Rosemary Powell, and two very exciting freshmen, Taniya Ratliff and Jessica Pepp. Good Luck Guys!!!

Thanks for everything Coach Myers and Coach Carter.

WOLFTRACK

The 1990 Boston Latin Track team, also known as the Wolfpack, (or better yet, Wolf-track), was an underrated team that went further than anyone's expectations. The 1989-1990 season was marked by celebrated championships, and individual excellence.

Few people realize that indoor track is not just a winter sport. It is a component of a 12 month, 365 day a year physical work-out. Britte Kelly and Betsy Monge were rewarded for their early morning runs during the summer. Both of them improved their endurance and built up their strength. The Cross Country season established a firm foundation for the winter months with Shena Stokes' 8th place finish and Elaine Sylvester's 4th place finish at the Dual County League All League Meet.

The change in setting did not deter the Wolftrack, for after years of struggling against their opponents, the relay team composed of Melinda Stokes, Emily Parker, Karimah Scott, and Elaine Sylvester seized a championship and defeated their long-time archrival Lincoln-Sudbury.

A team could not be complete, no matter what the sport, without the spirit. It's not always those who win all the time, or those who accumulate the most points that make the team. It is those people who are always there offering their support who make up the backbone of the team, those who come to practice, rain or shine and cheer on the team. Novella Green is one of these special people.

The Boys' Indoor Track team also did their fair share of intimidating, and sustained a fantastic effort throughout the entire season. Kevin Coleman was named as one of the Dual County League All-Stars and Aris Etheridge placed fifth in the State Class meet. With every race that Aris ran, he broke his previous record and set times to beat for the next time. Seniors Anthoney Lewin, who ran the 1,000 and threw the shot put, and Shawn Wilson a sprint runner, both had outstanding seasons.

Both the male and female members of the Boston Latin Wolf-track should be commended for their hard work, determination, and tolerance of the second floor running track.

◀ Again, Anthony 'Z' Lewin leads the pack with his stately jaunt.

Take Down!

Despite being a transitional season, this year's grapplers achieved a degree of success far greater than what Coach Ed Smith had anticipated, finishing with a 16-2-1 record. Led by the stalwart efforts of captains Sean McCarthy (17-2-1) and Pete McCarthy (17-3), the team started off the season with a loss to the Commonwealth Conference Powerhouse Minuteman. The team then suffered several losses due to the loss of many key mat-men to the "clap" (ear injury).

The season ended on a high note with strong finishes in the sectionals from all seniors, as well as junior Paul Brannelly (16-2-1). After a trip to Iowa State Wrestling Camp this summer, the team should be back next year as potential STATE CHAMPS!!!

▲ Tong, Phil, Ken, Wing, Ike, and John didn't sit on the bench to keep it warm; they studied and took notes for their own matches.

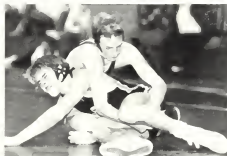

► Phil takes his opponent down for the three count.

◀ Most improved player, Sean McCarthy is a long time veteran on the wrestling mat.

▼ Paul Brannelly is a trophy and award winner. The entire team and coach admire him for his skill and hard work.

Captain Peter McCarthy's ambition is to take something seriously. He did. He devoted his time, effort, strength, and determination to the sport of wrestling.

◀ Nick struggles with his victim and wrestles him to the ground. No pain was spared in his efforts.

► It's together that this fearless group of Stanley Cup-hopefuls plot their plans to win

▼ John Hamilton is in a league all his own as he speeds by the competition and into Victory.

▲ Junior, Rich Stark, isn't beyond getting a little rough if it means bringing a win to the Wolfpack! He led the team with 20 goals and 24 assists.

▲ Even from the blue line, Mullie is a sure shot.

► It's Derek Shine rough-housing on the boards — anything for a win.

BLUE LINE

With their 9-11 record, the BLS Hockey team, may, at first glance, seem as though they had a bad year, but consider a few of their accomplishments: Coach Coleman notched his 300th career win, as he and assistant coach Mark Linihan guided the team to a tie for second place in the competitive Dual County League. Consider, as well, their come from behind victory against Dom Savio in which they rallied back with seven goals in the third period to overcome a 7-1 deficit. Also memorable is their 2-0 season sweep of the rival Acton team.

The team's individual play has been equally impressive. Seniors include forwards Kevin Forde and Jeff O'Donnell, goalie Kevin Torpey, Derek Shine at Right Wing, the quick skating Greg Fallon (co-captain and all-star) at center, with defensemen John Hamilton (co-captain) and Chris Mulligan (co-captain and all-star). Kevin Torpey, a former patient bench warmer, was elected unsung hero for efforts near the end of the season. Juniors include Pete Connolly, Richard Stark and Dave McKenna, all named all-stars. Richard Stark also led the team in goals scored. None of this would have been possible without a great work effort and will to win, players giving up six days a week, often until very late hours.

All totaled, the team had a solid year, and missed the State Tournament by only one game. They did, however, create an insurpassable junior corps as a promising foundation for next year's team.

Sophomore goalie Joe Burke and Captain John Hamilton aren't about to let anything get past their line of defense.

A Job Well Done

The 1989 Boys Swim Team had one of its best seasons celebrating a 4th place finish of its 400 yard freestyle relay at South Sectionals and 5th place at the Championships. The team finished 10th overall at Sectionals. At States, the 400 yard freestyle relay team, Dan McAuliff, John Anderson, Jorge Sun, and Matt McAuliff, competed in the 200 yard medley relay, finishing 10th at Sectionals and 12th at State. They also qualified individually for Sectionals. Dan McAuliff entered into the States in the 100 yard freestyle. In 100 yard freestyle individuals at South Sectionals, Dan McAuliff finished 5th and John Anderson finished 8th.

The senior swimmers are John Anderson, who swam 100 fly, 100 backstroke and 100 freestyle, Jorge Sun swam 50 freestyle, 100 freestyle, and 200 individual relay, and Ted "Ironman" Donlan swam 200 individual medley, 100 butterfly, 500, and 100 breaststroke. Each of the Wolfpack swimmers worked relentlessly to complete their most successful season to date. Congratulations to Coach Bruce Conley for a job well done.

"I wish I were a fish" — Mr. Limpet

▼ The 1990 swim team would not have been as successful as they were, if it wasn't for the instruction of their long time loyal coach.

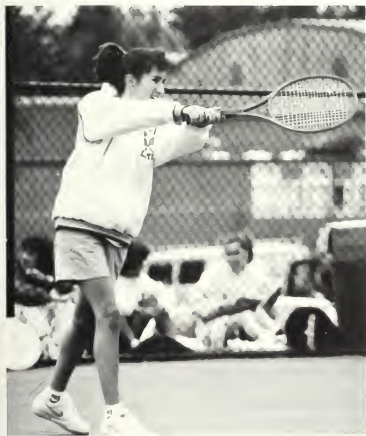

Match Point?

► Versatile in both the singles and doubles competitions, Heather McKeigue improves her play at every match.

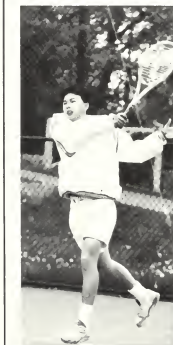

▼ Amy Kiley, a long time veteran of the tennis team, was unanimously selected as the team's most valuable player.

Yes, the tennis team did compete in a plethora of matches; but, no, it did not receive a great number of points. Between the many rain storms and endless traveling hours, the team experienced very little playing time. Yet, when the kids finally hit the court, they worked very hard on their skills and actually enjoyed themselves. The racket, which once had a mind of its own, became an extension of the player's upperbody. As the time elapsed, the hand-eye coordination developed to a cohesive state. Each player was in control of his or her technique. The team, as a whole, worked well together on and off the court. Even though they didn't win many matches they did win a number of great friends.

◀ Wimbledon bound, Sidney Young plays the base line with intellect and accuracy. His amazing skill and focused effort earned him the male MVP award.

Never Say Never

The 1990 Baseball squad will most likely never be forgotten by coach Dave Coleman. After suffering some crushing defeats early in the season, and paying heavily, the team handed coach Coleman his 300th victory in his second sport this year. In addition, the team defeated Lincoln Sudbury for the first time ever as well as defeating Acton Boxborough at their home field for the first time in the team's history, a feat which was duplicated in their third meeting of the year.

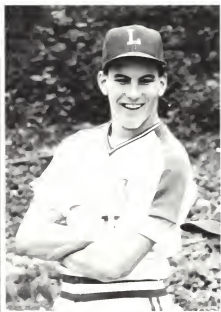

Led by First team all-star and Dual-County player of the year, Chris Mulligan, the "Wolf-Donkeys" finished the regular season with a 13-6 record and qualified for the state tournament. Mulligan was joined on the top nine in the league by Captain and four year starter, Tullio Capasso, as well as three season athlete, center-fielder, Derek Shine.

In the Tournament, Latin looked strong as they crushed league foe, Acton Boxborough, 15-2, behind junior, Dave McKenna's strong pitching performance with the additional help of seniors Jim Hunt, Sean McCarthy, and Jeff O'Donnell. Unfortunately, the donkeys ran into eventual state champion, Andover, in the second round and while junior Rich Starck kept the tough Andover team in check for seven innings, they exploded for 8 runs in the bottom of that inning and ended the Latin boys' championship attempt 10-2.

In all it was a very successful year for Dave Coleman's boys and they would all like to congratulate as well as thank him for his time and non-stop supporting attitude.

"HEY PETE, MOVE OVER!"

PUMP IT UP.

"Reach 2-3-4 and up 2-3-4, get the blood moving!" While the muscles were stretching during warm-ups, the minds were focusing in on the objectives of the day. As each member of the team set his mark, picked up a javelin or discus, or carried a baton, the adrenaline started pumping. As any Latinite knows, once the determined mind-set is established, obstacles are nonexistent. The 1990 Spring Track team did not allow its urban handicaps to hamper the spirit, lessen the determination, or retard the fast heart pace of its members. The supposedly superior suburban teams never faced such tough competition.

Bump, Set, CHAR SUI!!

▲ Stanley "Tower" Seto rose to the occasion and above the net when he went up against his competition. As an effective front line player, Seto dominates at the net both defensively and offensively.

▼ Howie Chin, Most Improved Player of the Year, set the junior varsity team up for a number of victories.

▲ Trying to imitate the pros, Johnny Wu sets up Wei Chau and Kai Fai Yu for a tandem, one of the many offensive plays used to deceive the other side of the court.

This year the Boy's Volleyball team was led by 6'2", senior Stanley Seto. Captain and Most Valuable Player, Stanley was also a gold medal winner in the 1989 Bay State Games. With its many powerhouses, the team dominated its competition at the net. The outside and middle hitters did more than spike the ball.

As their cheer sounded "Char Sui!", they axed the leather sphere. Because theirs was a heavy emphasis on attacking, the team's defense suffered, and did not meet up to par.

The team played with great spirit throughout the regular season and continued into the playoffs. After advancing to round one of the playoffs, the wolfpack captured a victory against Lowell. They were prepared to go all the way, but unfortunately they were unable to retain their drive into the next round. The team was eliminated from finals by the fierce Framingham South Squad. Hopefully the 1991 season will fulfill the expectations of the team and at full potential they will seize the long awaited state championship.

◀ Grace and form are not always essential to drive and determination, as Albert Chin sacrifices his body for the ball. Steven Yu and Stanton Young stand by, however, and anticipate a misplay.

▼ The bench, Pikun, Tommy, Howie, Keith, and Stanton, take a breather and enjoy the luxuries of having a home game on their own court.

▲ Too bad China Town rules don't apply to MIAA volleyball games. Ko Fai attempts an illegal two handed set during warm-ups.

SOFTBALL

SEEN IT!

Led by Captain Patricia Lohan, a five year varsity veteran, DCL league All-Star, and this year's Most Valuable Player, the Latin team faced tough and talented competition from Bedford and Lincoln-Sudbury. The team's spirits were not to be dampened, however, for when the going got tough, gloves were turned upside down and worn as "rally caps" amidst Captain Lohan's cries for "team unity". This led to a crushing defeat at Newton South in one of the most exciting games of the season, Nicole Desharnais, with her rifle-like arm and ability to hit the ball to any predetermined point in the field, was a league All Star and leading batter. Nora "Dobies" Boston was also a league All-Star and this year's recipient of the Coaches' Award. She could often be found sitting down in left field during breaks in the action, and was also the creator of the popular "Strike Force" tag team. With Melissa Mills doing a superb job behind the plate, former catcher Meghan Casey, our fourth DCL league All-Star, showed her versatility in the field by playing second base.

The outfield had strong batting and fielding with Keri Sweeney and Michelle Flanagan playing, along with Kath Birch and Ellen Lowe. Kara Zaleskas once again proved her value as a solid first baseman and cleanup batter while Kelsey Concannon showed herself ready to take over third next year. Caroline Power did an outstanding job as our pitcher with Kim Murray backing her up with her strong relief. Manager Katherine Craven will have to pass on her scorebook and skill at translating Coach Casey's writing to someone else after four years. Patty Reilly and Maura Kelly were hindered by injuries this year, but will be genuine assets to what is shaping up to be a powerhouse team.

Activities

Clubs are more than hobbies; organizations are more than miscellaneous committees; and activities are much more than afternoon meetings. The extracurricular activities at Boston Latin School range from the protection of animal rights in the Anti-Vivisection Society to the battle of wits in the Chess Club. The various clubs reflect the diverse population attending the school. They are an important and essential component to the three hundred and fifty-five year tradition. These activities provide the means for each student to acquire the responsibility, leadership, and cooperative skills they will need. The past school year has produced a plethora of achievements, opportunities, and of course nights of entertainment. These are the memories worth remembering.

From the President's Desk (which is small and in the corner):

"I'd like to begin by saying how impressed I am with the magnificent job you have all done with 'Arsenic,' considering the often chaotic conditions of the auditorium, still under construction during the majority of our rehearsal time. I'm amazed with the amount of work we were able to accomplish. Keep it up!!!"

A Very Special THANK YOU to John Largess, Sandie Woo (my little Chinese girl), Ben Mayer, Max

W'ithers and Justin Strattman for coming in at the last minute to build and put our set together. You guys are incredible!!! What would we have done without you, and how can I express the joy you have brought us? Hmme

What more can I say...? I don't think there's been a happier president, less stressed out perhaps, but not Happier. I knew we could do it!!! It's it wonderful!

*Thank You!

"Hmmm... It's about that time, eh??? Right now I should be saying something profound... (I'm not used to this! We declaimers are used to memorizing other people's speeches, we're not supposed to make up our own!) I'm too full of sentimental mush to say anything original anyway. To all the declaimers this year — you've done a wonderful job. In all honesty, I've never seen a more dedicated group of performers than we've had this year.

You were all so incredible... I'm so proud of you. Robert and Deddie, carry the torch high for us next year! Mr. Salterio, thank you for your love and support. Good luck everyone, I love you all! Once again, The African American Cultural Society sponsored their annual Black History Month program. Some of the highlights of this year's program were the Gospel Choir's rendition of, "This Little Light of Mine," and the sweet melodies of the Jazz Band performing, "Hill Street Blues." In addition, there was a special presentation called, "Did You Know," which was an informative piece designed to give some recognition to little known African American inventors. For instance did you know that Granville Woods invented the telephone system and apparatus, C. B. Brooks the street sweeper, Lewis Latimer the electric lamp, and T. J. Marshall the fire extinguisher? FUN

Our waterpolo team led by an enthusiastic Dan McAuliffe (the captain) had an outstanding first season. What I really want to know is, how did they get the horses in the water? Playing against both high schools and college teams the "Polo" team made an impressive showing. McAuliffe the top scorer was backed by many other formidable players, such as Jorge Sun, John Anderson, and Dave Manilov (Ha Ha). Through sound teamwork the team often rose to the top and sunk the competition, literally. Because of a solid foundation we should expect a second winning season and a new Boston Latin tradition.

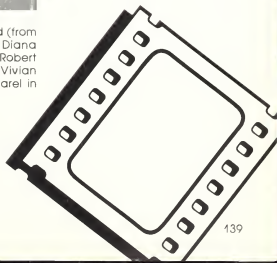

What did the Arts and Recreation club do? Well, they did it all; from skiing in the Berkshires to seeing the Monet exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts. For most people the trip to the Berkshires was their first time on skis, this led to many hilarious situations on the slopes. The objective of these outings is to show students that, all learning does not take place in the classroom. For example, watching The Merry Wives of Windsor at the Huntington Theater is another way to learn about literature without being bored to death in class. All in all the Arts and Recreation club is a good way for students to combine learning with fun.

From one extreme . . .

From the football field to the ice rink, from the Charles to the classroom, these kids express interests from one extreme to another. Those with rhythm and an abundance of school spirit joined the first Pep Squad. Dancing to popular tunes and cheering at full volume, the Pep Squad could be seen at football games, basketball games, and other sporting events. The Blue Line took over the hockey scene. Being the loyal fans that they were, the kids followed the skating wolfpack to all its games. The great outdoors holds a different perspective from a sail boat. It is a very unique experience to race down the Charles feeling the wind through your hair and the water on your face, then you realize that the buildings tower above along the banks. For those who believe in safe partying, SADD was established. Students against Drunk Driving sponsored a slide show of the dangers of driving while intoxicated. The National Honor Society, one of the longest established organizations at the school, is most selective in inducting its members. All of those who have been invited to join the society have proven themselves to be worthy scholastically and socially.

The clubs, activities, and organizations of the Latin School reflect the diversity of the student body and are an integral part of its existence.

VOICES ON FIRE

On the 4th day in May 1990, BLS was filled with the glorious "Sounds of Music" harmoniously intertwined with the voices of our several choir groups. These two pages represent the popular singing styles of Concert Choir, Gospel Choir, and Show Choir. Each group sang and danced their way to outstanding ovations.

► Show Choir member, Angie Roberts, declared that there was "Plenty Good Room" in her father's kingdom during her solo.

▼ Seniors Michael Rigas, Gordon Chin, Tsz Fu, and Tommy Chin all belled out a resounding "ALLELUIA!" during their performance in Concert Choir.

Patiently, I will stand by you. I will stand beside you faithfully. And through the years, I will be a friend for always and forever. Call on me and I'll be there for you. I'm a friend who always will be true

And I love you; can't you see that I can say I love, honestly And through the years I will be a friend for always and forever.”

April Vacation was more than just Fun in the Sun.

On the tropical islands of the Bahamas, they wine, dined, partied, and became the best of friends. ■ The natives say that Cancun changes those who visit its lands, but they never mentioned radical physical changes. ■ The two bathing beauties thought that they would test the power of authority of southern officials, by breaking a few of the rules. ■ Canada was never so cool. The ladies spent a night out on the town in gorgeous Montreal. ■ Michael(angelo) experimented with sand sculpture; clay was not his forte. ■ The shores of Cancun are breathtaking, to say the least. ■ Florida will never be the same; neither will Johnny's muscles (where are they?) ■ Picture perfect, Jhana and Kelly demonstrate only one of the many forms of entertainment near the equator. ■ Kara has discovered the only other way to travel besides those little motor scooters. ■ Look what You can get for a Swatch watch! ■ Mike's at home, with a hat on his head, sitting in a tree, looking at the sun, with drink in hand. ■ Tentative members of the Royal Family, Heather and Polly toured the streets of London.

Some say that a picture is worth a thousand words. It doesn't matter if Tina and Chris were touring Cancun, they could have been in the halls at Latin school; just as long as they were together ► Saying Good-bye. June 10, 1990 was an emotional day for the entire graduating class. Colleen Breen takes it to heart when she says farewell to Mr. C.

▼ Instant Gratification. Although there is no feeling like walking across the stage and accepting a diploma, there is a better feeling behind the many years of hard work and endless hours of frustration. Because of her perseverance, Maria Eliopoulos, recipient of the Max Levine Class of 1907 General Scholarship, paraded across the stage with her certificate of education.

Placing our Prospectives into Perspective

Honored guests, Mr. Contompassis, teachers, parents and friends — welcome to the long-awaited graduation of the class of 1990. We've invited you here to join in our celebration because we realize without your help there wouldn't be anything to celebrate.

As I looked over past valedictory addresses, searching for that something meaningful to say, I discovered a school I never knew existed, one where students come to school every day full of enthusiasm, where teachers never get tired or angry, and everyone is happy and "broadened." I could talk in the same mild platitudes — but I don't choose to, because I guess the heart of my speech is that perfection is not something real, that mistakes are as essential to learning as successes, and that we shouldn't waste our time chasing after something that doesn't even exist.

Latin is a great school, full of students and teachers who care. Human beings with all their flaws. Competition among students in this school is a destructive and unnecessary force, which detracts from the very purpose of this school. It is too easy to lose perspective, and count points rather than ideas

— I myself am one of the guilty. So today I remind you — Education is not a race, people, and I didn't win because I'm standing up here — if anything I lost, part of my peace of mind, part of my dignity. I say these things out of love, not hatred, because I want to see us learn from our mistakes and perhaps save others from useless anxiety.

So today I ask you to put all your experiences here in a larger frame. High school is an important part of life, but — part, if you could have done better here, do now in college without excuses and without regrets. Never let anyone make you feel your future is limited because of what you've done here.

Dare to prove them wrong. Many alumni were late achievers (perhaps a few on stage now). And if you have done well, be proud, not haughty. There is so much left to do and to learn. Life isn't just a book and it's not just a party, but full of both responsibility and fun. Experience all you can with your eyes open then you will add depth to your understanding. You really do have to believe that you can change the world: moreover that it's your obligation to do so, giving back to society all you have been given. Justify your presence here today like so many other Latin graduates have done.

And finally I must admit these thoughts are not exclusively my own. So lest I be accused of plagiarism I'd like to dedicate this speech to my parents. Thank you Mom and Dad for giving me meaningful words to live by.

Good luck everyone!

► Backstage Nerves. Valedictorian, Katherine Comer, and class President, Anne Guiney, compare notes before they make a presentation before the entire class and all their families.

◄ Air Electric. The atmosphere at Walter Brown Arena was electric with emotion as the new alumni tossed their caps into the air.

◄ Latin School not High School. Shawn Wilson glances over his diploma in attempts to accurately translate the Latin into English.

▲▲ Don't Anticipate. "Don't sit back and wait for what comes, go after what you want." — Wal Cheng

▲ Gifts Galore. Surrounded by family and friends, Erica Barry celebrates her graduation and is pleasantly surprised by all the flowers and balloons she received.

Too Good

Our years together at Latin have not been easy on any of us. Yet, we have all accomplished our high school goals and can now move on to more trying ones in the real world. We seniors have done our best — now that's what we deserve in life, the best. I hope everyone will hold only the good memories in his or her recollection of their Latin years. Good luck in life.

Rana Bandeli

By the time you read this, graduation will have been and gone. You have now made new friends and met new academic challenges. Some of you, as you glance through this book, will reminisce and feel nostalgic, but do not linger on the past. Do not depend on your memories, for they are abstract. Depend on the skills that you have mastered and the morals you have established during your six years at BLS. They will prove to be fundamental to your future.

Lisa Silipigno

To fellow classmates: Graduating from BLS is a rare and precious moment in our lives — it's a time to reflect back on friends made and knowledge gained after years of hard work, and to look ahead to future plans and special goals. May your graduation be the beginning of a wonderful future filled with happiness and success.

Sonny Li

Well Seniors or shall I say Freshman, What a fabulous day it was when we all said goodbye. By now you have all probably realized that our Latin education has made us erudites. "You are a very astute young person" is said to you all the time. But now, my fellow classmates it is time to look ahead instead of back. Live long, and prosper — until we meet again.

Anthony Lewin

I have really enjoyed the "Latin Experience" with the class of 1990. Although the past four years have been at times difficult, I made it — we all made it! I wish everyone the best and hope and pray that you will continue to excel in all of your endeavors. I love and will miss you all very much! Love,

Michele Monteiro

After six grueling years of agony, stress, and strife it all finally comes to an end. Fellow Seniors, ask yourself the questions: Did you enjoy it? Was it worth it? Would you go through it again? If you answered "Hell no!" — Don't worry — you've made it through six years of mental torture and still have life to offer... you're ready for the worst life has to offer.

Desmond Lorell

"It was the best of times. It was the worst of times..." We made it through six long years. Thanks for all the memories! Love Always,

Molly McKenna

Dear Friends and Lovers (Past and Present). Always remember me, the perfect Deva, and what I stood for. Always remember the things we did, didn't do and should have done but didn't. Remember my motto, I say what I mean and I mean what I say because you should always do it. Do it until you're satisfied, have had your fill, your piece of the pie, your taste of the sugar. Love. Always and Good Luck! — Kay

Karimah Scott

To the class of 1990 — I'll never forget any of you. I want to wish you all the best of luck in all that you do. Be the best. Reach for the highest. And keep the Latin spirit alive.

Kim Graham

To my colleagues: We have finally succeeded in finishing one of the most trying and difficult times of our educational career, and we did it together. Next year and in the years that follow, may you be successful in all that you do. Good luck in all your endeavors, and make it a point to be there at our reunions. Your friends will be there waiting for you. Ciao!

Danikka Giarratani

Hi, class of 1990! Well, it's finally over... We've made it! Good luck to you all and may all your dreams come true!

Frieda Wong

Hey Class of '90 — I'm not going to say "Never forget it!" — because after doing 4-7 years time in here, how could you? Good luck!

Free at Last

Dr. Coles, Judge Wolfe, Dr. Wilson, Mr. Contompassis, Distinguished Guests, Teachers, Parents, and fellow students.

On May 29 of this year, standing in the senior corridor, I heard a joyous shout behind me.

"Free at last, free at last. Thank God Almighty, free at last!"

I knew the person behind me wasn't talking about Dr. King. He meant instead the feeling of freedom one gets after returning books, cleaning out lockers, passing in the orange sign-out card, and walking out the doors onto Ave. Louis Pasteur for the last time as a student.

Today, though, after proms, sports banquets, and awards nights, the realization has hit that it's actually over, and we are feeling much more reflective about Latin, a place where we've spent a third of our lives.

On the back of the building there is a plaque, one of the few that doesn't memorialize dead Romans or dead Yankees, that says:

Principium sapientiae, possibile sapientiam et in omni possessione tua acquirit prudentiam.

For those of you who have only taken five years of Latin instead of six, I'll translate:

"The beginning of wisdom is: Get knowledge, and with all thy getting, get understanding."

Our Latin School education has given us a solid basis of knowledge and we are all very grateful today to our teachers and parents for that. But it has also given us a basis of knowledge and we are all very grateful today to our teachers and parents for that. But it has also given us a basis for the beginnings of understanding.

A month ago, the organizers of a new youth program called the school office in search of a happy, interracial group of kids for some pictures in a brochure. I was given the job of rounding up five photogenic, dressed-up seniors. After the pictures had been taken, complete with a truly extraordinary tie borrowed from Mr. Casey, we went over to the Longwood Galleria to have breakfast and waste a little time before we went back to school. We didn't know each other very well, and at first talked only about the rigors of Latin School, but before long we were talking freely about who we are, where we're from, and where we hope to go.

We also discussed the tensions in the city and the recent violence and found that among the things we shared was that each of us either knew personally or had gone to school with someone killed or one of their killers.

We talked about a lot of things in those two hours, such as what separated us from those caught up in the violence, and why it had taken six years to meet and be able to talk like this. The photographer's goal, a bit corny, perhaps, was to illustrate kids who had obvious outward differences working together. As the morning wore on, strangely, we became more like what the photographer had in mind.

After I got back to school and thought about our conversation, I realized that the opportunities for increasing understanding at Latin are here in the school because of our vastly different backgrounds, rather in spite of them.

I love Boston Latin School. Because I do, I want it to use and draw upon this richness of backgrounds for its benefit and the benefit of all the students to come. As we move toward the end of our fourth century, I hope that we will maintain the important tradition described on the plaque: knowledge on the one hand, but wisdom and understanding on the other.

We haven't added any plaques to the school lately. This year, though, there has been an important addition: hanging in the cafeteria are fifty flags representing the national origins of the students at Latin, a visible testament to the growing diversity of the student body.

I hope Boston Latin School will build on these differences, and find in them the source of its strength for the future. There need be no conflict between traditions and standards on the one hand and the celebration of our many differences on the other. That is, after all, what our country is all about and what our school should be about as well. — Anne Guiney, Class President

The Tenacious Trio

Vice President, Robert Kwong, Secretary, Melissa Carr, and Treasurer, Sandie Woo were the force behind the power of student government. These three did all the dirty work (literally). It was Melissa and her crew who kept the parking garage spotless. Sandie and her make-shift staff went from room to room and person to person collecting monies. If the President had an idea, this trio followed up on it. If a class committee member had a suggestion, one of these three researched it. Without their hard work and dedication, Anne never would have looked so good, and the class of 1990 would not have done so well.

Closing

The 1989-90 school year is filled with a number of memories, most of which are contained between the covers of this book. In closing thanks is offered to the yearbook staff; the expectations of each student is highlighted; those little, yet important, events are remembered; and gratitude is expressed to the generous benefactors and business sponsors.

Too Good
To Forget

◀ The once filled halls were empty after graduation. There were no seniors to be yelled at, there were no doors slamming, or papers flying. The "role model" class was gone. They left to the junior class, a standard up to which they are expected to achieve. Though many classes will pass through these hallowed halls, none will ever match the class of 1990.

YEARBOOK STAFF

A Commitment to Excellence

The 1990 edition of the Liber Actorum is a very special project for the editors and staff. The students, teachers, faculty, and parents, who are not quite familiar with the production of the yearbook, find it hard to believe the number of hours spent working on the layouts, writing copy, or cropping pictures for one-hundred and ninety-two pages. The Liber Actorum has traditionally been the same yearbook with the exception of different names and faces. The class of 1990 is not like any other class; therefore it would be an injustice to publish a generic yearbook, again. While the staff was in attendance at a summer workshop, members had the chance to view contemporary yearbooks from across the country. The so called yearbook experts offered lots of advice and mentioned many innovative ideas to the staff. Unfortunately time was not built in a day, and neither is a nationally ranked yearbook. The 1990 Liber Actorum, however, is definitely a step in the right direction. It is the first of hopefully a long line of intriguing publications. In the meantime, the editors and staff of this edition hope that each and every time you read and reflect upon these pages, you discover something new and interesting.

It must have been cold there in my shadow
To never have sunlight on your face
You were content to let me shine
That's your way
You always walked a step behind

So I was the one with all the glory
While you were the one with all the strength
A beautiful face without a name
For so long
A beautiful smile to hide the pain

Did you ever know that you're my hero
And everything I would like to be
I could fly higher than an eagle
For you are the wind beneath my wings

It might have appeared to go unnoticed
But I've got it all here in my heart
I want you to know I know the truth
Of course I know that I would be nothing without you

Did you ever know that you're my hero
You're everything I wish I could be
I could fly higher than an eagle
For you are the wind beneath my wings
Did I ever tell you you're my hero
You're everything, everything I wish I could be Oh, and I

I can fly higher than an eagle
For you are the wind beneath my wings
You are the wind beneath my wings

Oh, the wind beneath my wings
You are the wind beneath my wings
Oh you, the wind beneath my wings

Fly... Fly... Fly away
You let me fly so high
Oh, Fly... fly
So high I almost touch the sky
Thank you
Thank you
Thank God for you
The wind beneath my wings

Thank You Mom & Dad
